Trapping Tigers on Camera

Jim Nichols, Ph.D., retired wildlife biologist and senior scientist from Patuxent Wildlife Research Center, will share his experience, photos, and fascinating stories about locating tigers and estimating their numbers. He utilized camera traps and will tell us exactly how he accomplished this awesome work. Jim may also share some of his other research experiences like tagging seals in Antarctica, studying manatees, horseshoe crabs, alligators, snail kites, ducks and eagles. Please join us for this exciting presentation.

Presentation will be followed by an Ice Cream Social.

Friends Members, guests and folks who may consider becoming a Friends Member are welcome.
